JUNIOR CLASS PRESENTS

ITS ANNUAL SPRING PLAY

Laughable Comedy Provokes Much Praise for Coaches, Cast, and Class

"NOTHING BUT THE TRUTH"

"Nothing But the Truth" was presented Saturday evening in Bomberger by the Junior Class for the benefit of their Ruby. This comedy by James Montgomery provided an evening of fun and laughter for an audience which filled the hall to its capacity. Conservative opinion ranks the play as at least one of the very best ever presented at Ursinus. The acting was of excellent quality throughout. Stellar work was done by Cyril Helffrich as Bob Bennett, the hero, Helen Groninger as Mabel Jackson, a vaudeville actress, and Eugene Michael as Clarence Van Dusen, a sarcastic stock broker.

The audience was in gales of laughter from the beginning to the final curtain. The play itself is built around an extremely funny situation. Bob Bennett bets that he will tell the truth for twenty four hours. E. M. Ralston, Dick Donnelly, and Clarence Van Dusen are three other stock brokers who bet that he can't. The amusing incidents which are developed from this situation are many. Beside this main situation, several comedy characters provide additional fun.

The cast deserves great credit, as well as the coaches, for putting on a play of the quality of "Nothing But the Truth." General opinion has it that it was the best play seen here in some years. At the very least, it can be said to have been by far the funniest.

The Bishop is a character that would obtain a laugh from a November persimmon. Though he claims that he is only a child in business, he shows that he has learned one of its cardinal principles when he is swindled. He hollers for what he wants, and when he hollers loud enough he gets it. William H. K. Miller played this part with distinction.

Miss Groninger's soubrette part in combination with that of Miss Sarah Hinkle was another which obtained profuse laughter. As a pair of "dumb bell" vaudeville actresses, these two provided a bit of effective low comedy acting.

The leading male part—that of Bob Bennett—was handled very capably by Cyril Helffrich. In this part, which William Collier created on the professional stage several years ago, he did the most effective work of the evening. Many of the lines are of the farce type, and their efficiency as laugh provokers depends on the use (Continued on page 4)

This Means You!

Students, alumni and friends are cordially invited to attend the May Day Carnival and dance under the auspices of the Ursinus Athletic Association.

Activities will begin at 12 p. m. Standard time with a tennis match—Philadelphia Art and Textile College being opponents of the team.

At 2 p. m. numerous booths will open where everybody will find something that they want in the line of luxuries, flowers, sweets and "eats" of all sorts.

From 3 to 4.30 the literary societies will present specially prepared programs for the entertainment of the May Day crowd.

Dinner will be served at 5 p. m.

The annual May Day Dance will be held from 5.30 to 6.30 on the campus.

After the dance on the campus the next point of interest will be the Field Cage where there will be a dance for all at 6.45.

1923 Rubies on Sale

The 1923 Rubies have arrived from the printer, and Business Manager Harry Snyder is anxious to wind up his end of the work. He still has a good many unsold copies for which he is desirous of obtaining owners. The price is three dollars and they are well worth it. Orders should be sent to him, and he will fill them promptly

PERKIOMEN INN SCENE OF

SENIORS' LAST FESTIVITY

Outing and Banquet of Graduating Class Held Thursday

Did the Seniors have a good time on Thursday? Just ask them! They'll talk for hours about it if you don't stop them. From the minute "Ad" Sheely tested the hardness of Shreiner pavement to the singing, finally, of the campus song in the wee sma' hours of the morning, "We had just a dandy time," to quote one of 23's own words.

They met early in the afternoon and piled into trucks in their own dignified way. These took them to Schwenksville where the Perkiomen Inn was given over to them "to do with as they pleased." The Inn brought out canoes and the afternoon was spent gaily skimming over the Perk.

At 6.30 a delightful banquet was served in the Inn. The dining room was decorated in class colors and college and class pennants. Mr. Mertz and Mr. Edwards were the chaperons and "They are jolly good fellows," the Seniors say. J. Stanley Reifsneider was toastmaster and introduced the speakers. Mr. Mertz was the first speaker and praised the good deeds of '23, at the same time reminding her of her faults. He appealed to his audience to be always loyal to their Alma Mater and to support her at all times. He ended by saying he was very glad to be there and was enjoying the "eats" immensely.

Mr. Edwards felt rather out of place at first trying to be Mrs. Mertz but nevertheless he said he was very glad to be there. He urged the Seniors to institute a new custom at Ursinus, that of a class letter.

E. K. Miller and Milly Xander praised the class for her pep and spirit and interest in everything she did. Karl Houck, as president, said a few words of farewell and hoped the class would stick together. His talk was very brief and he ended by saying "We came to have a good time together so—let's go!"

And a good time they did have. The dancing began and everyone, even Prof. Edwards, did the finale hop to the strains of a Pottstown orchestra. During the dance P. A. enjoyed several games of solitaire and after tiring of that exciting pastime, he settled back in his chair and read the Saturday Evening Post.

At 12 the party came to an end. They loaded into the trucks and were hurried back to the campus where they woke everyone with their cheering and singing. And as the College drifted into slumber once more, it echoed sleepily, "Here's to good old '23."

INITIAL Y. M. C. A. SOCIAL

NIGHT WAS GREAT SUCCESS

Social night was introduced into the regular list of Y. meetings on Wednesday evening when the meeting was held in the Thompson Field Cage. Most of the male student body were present and enjoyed it very much. The meeting was opened with the regular devotional exercises by Mr. Leeming and was concluded by an exhibition of boxing, wrestling and gymnastics.

The curtain raiser was a three round boxing bout between Evans and Deal. Both boys mixed it up through-

Library Wind-up Campaign Opens With Voluntary Subscriptions

GENEROUS ANTICIPATIONS OF COMMITTEE'S APPEAL

Ere the Alumni Memorial Library Committee could get its direct appeal before the graduates and former students, checks, pledges, and letters began coming to Headquarters at Collegeville from various parts of the country. This activity in advance of the Committee's program is undoubtedly due to the service rendered the cause by the Weekly as is evidenced by this letter from Buffalo:

"The Ursinus Weekly has just arrived at my desk. I have read with keen interest the financial statement of the costs and receipts of the Alumni Memorial Library Building. It is an excellent report. It reveals sagacious business management. The present situation of the enterprise is such that it should awaken new interest on the part of every alumnus and create a determination to complete the project without delay. I have enough faith in the whole hearted devotion of the Ursinus men and women both to their Alma Mater and to the "honored dead" to feel confident that we will not fail in this glorious task.

"I want the privilege of doubling my original pledge of $150 and herewith enclose a check for $50 to be credited to the new account."—Nevin D. Bartholomew '02.

The following message comes from one who visited the College on "Education Day" and, with the other guests, was shown through the new building. This man has already made three contributions toward the building fund and sends $50 in addition.

"That Memorial Library is a 'Wonder.' I don't understand how an alumnus can RESIST helping to pay for it, especially if he or she has actually seen it. Would that every former student or alumnus could behold that REAL students' workshop."—Edgar T. Robinson '14.

These are two representative letters—one from a minister and the other from a teacher. We have 330 ministers and 347 teachers among our alumni. What may we not expect when this spirit spreads through the entire body? Then, there are our physicians and business men—conservative, but not lacking in devotion to the little College which gave them their preparation for life, and always ready to play the game with the "preachers" and "teachers."

This week will bring a stirring letter to each one. The Committee has put in black and white just what the "bit" is which each must do, and the Weekly predicts that by this time next week, Headquarters will be deluged with money and subscriptions.

SIG BADEN BREAKS TWO RECORDS

DISCUS AND SHOTPUT MARKS FALL BEFORE URSINUS STAR AT HARRISBURG MEET

At the Central Pennsylvania Collegiate Conference Track Meet, held at Harrisburg last Saturday, "Sig" Baden broke two records in the field events. In the shot put he set a new standard of 40 feet 9 inches, which is 1 foot ½ inch better than the mark set by Will two years ago. In the discus throw, his sensational heave of 114 feet 8¼ inches topped the mark set by Vic Emanuel last season by 3¼ inches.

The ten points which Baden won by these victories were the only ones Ursinus was able to score. However, the College was represented by only three men—"Ursinus' plucky band", as the North American characterizes them.

"Sig's" two victories should bring renewed confidence to the track team for their meet with Drexel today, since Drexel was one of the participants in the meet. With two firsts certain, chances look bright for a favorable outcome. At Harrisburg Drexel scored only 2¼ points more than Ursinus, having a total of 12¼ points. However, their points were more scattered than those scored by the Ursinus contingent, which means that by the dope they should have an edge on the Collegeville team.

At the present time it is uncertain whether or not Ursinus will participate in the meet at Allentown next Friday and Saturday. Some correspondence seems to be missing, and though every effort is being made to secure entrance into the meet, it is doubtful that this will be accomplished. However, if the mistake is rectified in time, the Ursinus team will be on hand when the Middle Atlantic Meet at Allentown opens Friday afternoon.

TWO HOME GAMES RESULT IN DIVISION OF VICTORIES

Albright Takes Game Featuring Airtight Pitching While Haverford is Defeated 8-5

WOOD PITCHES NICE BALL

Ursinus lost a hard-fought game to Albright on Paterson field Wednesday, by the score of 3 to 1. The game was a pitchers' battle between Howells and Zeigenfus, with the latter taking the honors. Ursinus had two men on the sacks, with two men out, no less than four times, but each time the necessary bingle was lacking. For three innings neither team scored, while one hit was all that was garnered from the airtight pitching of Howells. In the fourth however, Jones, Lineback and Leh scored through sharp hits and an error. Ursinus tried hard to get going but a single run in the sixth frame was all the offensive brought in. The one bright feature of the defeat was the playing of Wismer at third base. Of the nine chances he had "Goose" accepted eight in faultless fashion while a bad peg to first cost him an error. The game showed that the "breaks" were still going bad and when good pitching did appear the hitting was lacking.

Haverford Game

Ursinus won an uphill battle from Haverford in her own back yard on Saturday by the close score of 8 to 5. Williams, who twirled so effectively at Western Maryland, started for the Red and Black, but was so wild that Coach Cornog ordered him to an early shower in the third chapter. At the time of his exit, the bases were choked with alien runners through walks and Wood took up the task under a handicap. Wood allowed one run for the remainder of the inning, after which he pitched airtight ball. In the remaining six innings Wood allowed but two hits and only one run was chalked up against his offerings. The game was nip and tuck the full way with Ursinus slowly creeping along to an undenied victory. The fight was ever present and from the fourth inning to the end the Red and Black scored in each frame. Wismer's triple, a single by High, and Buchanan's walk netted two runs in the fifth. In the seventh Ursinus tied the count at 5 up, while in the eighth Faye's long homer, a walk and singles by Sellers and Wood netted three runs. The score stood 8-5 in (Continued on page 4)

Editorial Comment

Recently, at the Women's Student Government Association convention in Columbus, Ohio, a delegate, in defending rigid judicial decisions in student government matters, stated, "Democracy tends toward mediocrity." Perhaps she was right. If there were such a thing as degrees of democracy, we should say, "Too much democracy makes for mediocrity."

We have been somewhat proud of the democratic spirit at Ursinus, and we should hate to have it overshadowed by even the ghost of mediocrity. We should despise being "ordinary."

It was gratifying for the Ursinus delegate to be able to sit back in her chair while most of the others quibbled about fraternities and politics. On most campuses, people get offices and honors because their fraternity happens to be most powerful, and not because they deserve them. Hall, society, and social cliques often manifest themselves at Ursinus, but the hard and fast organization of the exclusive society is not felt.

We believe that if fraternity loyalty could be made to transfer itself into college spirit there would be a justification for such organizations. Class spirit and healthy class distinction seem to promote a better school spirit at Ursinus. Class spirit, we feel, is democratic for there is no such thing as the freshmen not becoming sophomores, the sophomores, juniors, and so on. In other words, one class merges into another and there is a wholesome rivalry to determine which class will serve the College best.

College spirit is not mediocre; it is not "ordinary". Indeed, it is, at times, rare. At a baseball game between two of the "Big Ten" middle Western universities, played on the campus of one of them, there were about seventy-five spectators. We at Ursinus, at least fuss and fume about so small an attendance. At any rate, we don't believe our democracy is leading us toward mediocrity. H. G. '24

MEET ME ON THE OLD CAMPUS

Pass this word on to your classmates and college friends of by-gone days. Remember, we are to have a "Week-end Commencement," that is, you come at the week end and return home the beginning of the next week. All the exercises are to take place between Friday noon, June 8, and Monday noon, June 11. This will make it possible for you to attend for part of the time at least—perhaps with a little managing, for the whole time.

This is to be an Alumni Commencement in a special sense. The first graduating class, that of '73, will observe its golden anniversary. It is expected that the three living members will be here. Let the other forty-nine classes turn out in force to greet the boys of fifty years ago. Other classes are arranging anniversaries. The twenty-five year olds expect to be back in force.

Those who have not been on the college grounds for some years will find many changes and improvements. But the old landmarks still remain, and the place will lack none of its old-time charm.

I. N. A. Convention

The Ninth Semi-Annual Convention of the Intercollegiate Newspaper Association, of which the Ursinus Weekly is a member, will be held at Haverford the eighteenth and nineteenth of this month. Fullerton Waldo, associate editor of the Philadelphia Public Ledger, Carl W. Ackerman, vice-president of the Institute of American Business, and James Melvin Lee, executive secretary of the I. N. A., and professor at New York University, will speak at the convention.

Haps From a Yoodle

It was with great pleasure that the Yoodle saw Professor Munson taking a sun bath on the front porch of his home. Though he is still weak from his operation, the Professor is able to get around, and that's something. We miss our guess if the H-P. fellows do not celebrate the return of "Old Doc Yak" by a wild jollification of some kind.

The news has it that the British are so disgusted with the Bolsheviks that it is more than likely that the Lion and the Bear will break off their present state of semi-friendly relations. To those familiar with the British mind the latter phrase indicates the true state of affairs—that the relations are for no more nor less than trade. The British would not have had anything to do with the present Russian government if they had not figured that the trade would be extremely valuable to them.

Lloyd-George was the chap who was directly responsible for this affair. And the Russians fooled him badly (as they have a habit of doing to everybody, lately) because they have no trade worth mentioning. What little they do have to hand out is not worth much because of the rotten situation in international exchange. Then when this barrier to trade does not halt affairs, the national Russian habit, today, of forgetting to pay their just debts, etc., mixes matters up rather badly. All in all, England had a lemon handed to her when she started to become friendly with the Bolsheviks.

These latter hopped all over England whenever they got a chance. They tried to spread propaganda, in direct violation of the treaty. They did about everything they could with the limited powers which man has for raising the Old Nick.

In view of this extremely distressing state of affairs (to England, of course) the United States can thank her lucky stars that she steadfastly refused to have anything to do with the Rip-roaring Revolutionary Reds from Russia. There is enough business in this little old spherical hunk of matter, which the facetious call the world, without giving aid and comfort to a gang of dizzy lunatics, in order to get a few dollars worth of trade.

But to get our feet down to the aforementioned Terra Firma, as the spaghetti-eaters of old had it, what's the trouble with the college bell? The official bellringer has had trouble at various and sundry times. Every now and then he has to hunt all over Bomberger in order to find the clapper in the office of the Dean. As everybody knows, the Dean takes no interest in bells. (Pardon our spelling; we'll try to be more accurate in the future.) But while the hunting pro-

The boys would pass her the dishes first, she would help herself and set them down at the far end of the table where no one could reach them. The boys would either have to ask or do without.

If they didn't, she would arch her eyebrows and shrug her shoulders or even tell the other girls about it when she got to the hall.

Finally they became so tired of this that they never passed her anything any more. She had to be satisfied with the driest of bread and the slightest of potatoes.

The little girl was sorry, but it was too late. Her day had passed.

MORAL:—Even man won't play a woman's way all the time.

Our Highlander manifested one Scottish characteristic. He was tight.

If Mac gets many more cows in his barn they will begin to give condensed milk.

Mrs. Mertz has left for an extended trip to the South, leaving her husband at home alone. The Spirit is moved to urge all friends of the family to extend as many invitations to meals as possible to the lone survivor.

Y. W. C. A.

The Y. W. service was held in Zwing Hall Wednesday evening. Miss Hesperheide conducted the meeting and after the Bible reading by her "little sister," Eva Alger, she told the girls about the Lutheran Conference held in Illinois.

She made her talk to the girls very interesting by telling of the activities of students on other campuses. "Out where the West begins and folks plan and work and play together," that was the scene where men and women from many colleges met to discuss different problems. What might be done to interest the indifferent student in God? Jesus is to all a living Friend. He, whose Friend Jesus is, must share Him with others by showing to them how God cares for us.

"At the convention, different students spoke of the various activities of other colleges—chapel, Bible studies, social service work—all of which were voluntary and everyone showed a wonderful interest in them. These colleges can do these things and be voluntarily interested in them. Why can't Ursinus?"

"Those who can must help others to visualize Jesus, to make Him real. It is a challenge to make ourselves felt. We may be weak but in weakness there is strength. We must live for the present. Perhaps we are visionary and do not overcome obstacles. But this is not Christianity. We must be ready to 'do'. The students here seem to have no definite views on religion. They take religion as a matter of course. These indifferent ones need the most of our efforts and the only way we can do this is by getting a clear vision of Jesus Christ ourselves."

Prayer was offered by Edna Detwiler after which the service closed.

cess is going on the poor college students have to arise, eat, go to class and to bed according to the feeble reverberations of the crippled bell.

The recent kidnapping of several Americans by Chinese bandits recalls the stirring bit of history centering about the Boxer Uprising. Of course the present affair is not in a class with the Boxer trouble as far as magnitude is concerned; and so it is not surprising, as a writer in the Philadelphia Bulletin points out, that the government of the United States does not intend to take any drastic steps. So, since we have broken a precedent of long standing by agreeing with the government—in their treatment of the Bolsheviks—we might as well continue the good work, and agree with it in this case, though, of course, only in principle and with reservations. We cannot be too radical all at once, you know.

It was our opinion that the recent decision of the Supreme Court banning liquor upon all ships inside the Three Mile Limit would cause a rather delicate diplomatic situation. So it is with intense gratification that we see that the British are taking the whole affair in a facetious way. To be more exact in our orthography, we should say with good humored levity. That's the old stuff, Johnny Bull. Who says you don't have a sense of humor?

Does the general public realize that Ursinus will be the scene of two dances in May? The nineteenth is May Day, and in addition to the program announced for the rest of the day, there will be a dance in the evening. All will be for the benefit of the Athletic Association. Then on the evening of the twenty-sixth the regular dance of the Student Council is scheduled to be held. Some doings this merry old month!

1923 RUBY ARRIVES

Thursday morning an epoch-making event occurred—the first shipment of fifty 1923 Rubies arrived on the campus. It is reported that a score or more fainted and required medical aid. The shock had been too much for them. Several more were injured in the riot which followed, the result of the mad rush to obtain a copy of the coveted red-bound Ursinus annual. Everywhere we now see students eagerly perusing the new volume which is an excellent epitome of college life.

Although there is but little opportunity for variety in a book of this character, one or two distinctive features are to be noted. The clever page headings give a touch of novelty. A most attractive section is that containing the portraits of the "juvenile faculty." One feature which especially deserves mention is the printing of the music to the most popular college songs. The Chronicles too are very clever and interesting. Improvement might have been made in the book, if all the material which was handed in could have been used. Due to the pressure for time under which the staff worked the last few weeks, however, some material had to be omitted.

Siegfried Baden, editor-in-chief of this new jewel deserves much commendation for his untiring efforts to make the Ruby a success. The book is one of which each member of the class can be justly proud.

To you who have not already purchased a Ruby we say "get one while the getting's good". There are only a few more copies remaining. The price of a Ruby is three dollars and it is well worth the price.

Whatever your "Choice of a Career," college training has increased your economic value, and whatever business or profession you enter, adequate life insurance is a proper self-appraisal of your powers in that direction.

The traditions, practices, and financial strength of the JOHN HANCOCK Mutual Life Insurance Company are such that the college man can take peculiar pride in having a John Hancock policy on his life. It is a distinct asset from the start. It will pay you to buy it; and later on, should you think of joining this company, it will also pay you to sell it. Our representatives will tell you just how, and can assist you in selecting both your career and your insurance.

LAST LECTURE COURSE WAS PRESENTED MONDAY EVENING

Last Monday night witnessed the performance of the long expected Scotch entertainers. While many thought that the program could have been much better, there were compensations.

Miss Mary Mack sang in a very rich, pleasing tone although it was hard to understand her. Her renditions of "Annie Laurie" and "Comin' Through the Rye" were especially appreciated, as was evidenced by the absolute silence which reigned when she had finished her solos.

Mr. Paterson's way of putting across his stories, as well as the stories themselves, caused peal after peal of laughter. However as a singer he left much to the imagination. As most of the audience was Scotch or some other related race, no difficulty in understanding the brogue was experienced, save by a few whose ancestors hail originally from the land of Bismark.

Twice during the evening Mr. Paterson attempted to get the audience to join him in the chorus of a song. As the cat had nearly everyone's tongue, this bit of community singing could not be classed as a striking success.

Of course bag-pipe music could not be omitted when a Scotch program is rendered. Several duets ended the evening's entertainment.

ACCOMMODATIONS COMMENCEMENT WEEK

As far as possible, alumni will be provided with lodging free in the college buildings. It becomes increasingly difficult as the alumnibody grows in numbers to carry out this policy with reference to all, but every bit of space available for sleeping quarters will be commandeered for that purpose this year. However, it is certain that alumni and former students will return in larger numbers than ever, and the Commencement Committee urges that you write in advance for your reservation. By so doing you will not only make sure of a place for yourself but will save the Committee much trouble at the last moment. It is expected that the limited hotel space of Collegeville and Trappe will be taxed to its utmost. The practicability of automobile parties stopping at Norristown is being emphasized. All visitors may obtain meals at the College Dining Rooms at low rates.

Juniors Present Play

of just the right shade of acting. It was in this sort of line that Mr. Helffrich was at his best, and more praise to him for that!

Miss Helen Isenberg took the leading feminine part. As Gwendoline Ralston she was excellent—but mistaken. Her work was good, but because she is capable of much better in a part suited to her taste and temperament, the inevitable comparison detracts from the credit which impartial judgment would give her.

Clarence Van Dusen, a sporty young stock broker, was played by Eugene B. Michael. His characterization was consistent throughout and was well fitted to obtain the maximum amount of humor from his lines. This was one of the stellar pieces of work of the play.

Of the others of the cast it may be said that they did the best possible with their parts, but that their lines were not good enough to allow any chance for outstanding work. This is especially true of Warren Bietsch's interpretation of E. M. Ralston. In some ways this was the best acting of the play, and yet the part does not provide the opportunity which would allow Mr. Bietsch to have made it stand out. Dorothea Haelig's playing of Mrs. Ralston, the bewildered wife of E. M., may also be summed up that way.

Edwin Faye's Dick Donnelly and Margaret Mills' Ethel Clark were vivid portrayals of character parts. Miriam Zuagg handled the role of Martha, the maid.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Gawthrop, of the College faculty, coached the play, and a great part of its glory belongs to them.

The executive officers were: Business Manager, Henry Kauffman; Stage Director, Robert Rensch; Electrician, Carl M. High; Properties, Edith Fettes and C. Earl Linck; Head Usher, Mabel Rothermel.

The committee in charge: Wm. K. Miller, chairman, Sarah Hinkle, Mabel Rothermel, Fernley Rutter, Forrest Lenker, and Richard F. Deitz.

out the affair. The first round was devoted to feeling each other out, but real slugging began in the second. Deal went down under the combination of a punch and a slip on the waxed floor, and struck his head on a chair. This knocked him groggy, but the Chicken managed to get on his feet at the count of nine. However he was plainly in no condition to continue and so the bout was called off.

The second match was between Young Wayman and Battling Nelson. Nelson was too heavy for Wayman and had the best of him all through the fight. It was called off in the second round.

The feature of the night was the wrestling match between Agley and Stevenson. Although Agley was heavier than Stevenson, the latter put up a good fight. The decision of the bout was to be given two out of three throws, barring the toe hold, hammer lock and strangle hold. Agley with much difficulty succeeded in pinning his opponent's shoulders to the mat. The second round—after going for a while Agley got his hold and threw Stevenson for the second time. This gave him the decision. Stevenson played the defensive all through the fight.

Next was the Jamack-Baker boxing bout. All through the fight, which went the full three rounds, Jamack had the better of his opponent. Baker was bruised around the body, from Jamack's constant slugging. The judges gave their decision in favor of Jamack. The judges were: Gillespie, Moyer and Eckerd. Referee, Wikoff.

The program came to a close with an exhibition of gymnastics by Kulp and Reifsneider. They showed talent in their acrobatic stunts. A comment was heard, "That they should get a position in Ringling Bros. Circus, instead of selling Pictorial Reviews, this summer."

The need for increased contributions to the fund to furnish the Y rooms was brought out.
